Аннотация:

The authors have analyzed various particularities of distance learning, learning management systems, content management systems and content learning ones, their functional distinctions for users, including those in the system of higher education. Approaches to the choice of learning management systems (LMS) are discussed: main requirements for choosing LMS given in the foreign sources, with a special focus on choosing a LMS for a Russian higher education institution. The Russian LMS market offers quality products for using exactly in Russian higher education institutions. Russian companies - developers of LMS - keep track of the users' wishes and are oriented to further cooperation in order to provide for all requests from higher education institutions.
