Аннотация:

The article presents data on the results of monitoring studies conducted in Russia on the prevention of addictive and suicidal behavior and Internet risks among adolescents. The source of the data is the activity of the Center for the Protection of the Rights and Interests of Children in the period 2014-2017 for two interrelated projects: the identification of parents' and learners' awareness of life-threatening Internet risks and threats present on the Internet, and the monitoring of the state of work on the prevention of suicidal behavior within educational organizations. The article presents data on the methodology for conducting research and directions for using the results of the research. © 2018 Taylor & Francis Group, London.
