Аннотация:

Dairy products are an important part of the human diet. An effective dairy market is necessary to ensure food security and, accordingly, national security of the state. This short paper is devoted to the change in consumer prices for staple dairy products on the Russian market. It answers the following questions: How did consumer prices for staple dairy products change after the introduction of sanctions of 2014 and counter-sanctions? What prices for staple dairy products should be expected in 2019-2020?.
